Re: Peddlers Ordinance

I worked with both Consultant Stephanie Carver of GPCOG and Attorney Mary Costigan of BSSN on this project while Mr. Hanson was on vacation and I can summarize the changes as follows:

- Ms. Carver made changes based on the September 11th meeting. She added language regarding submission requirements, cleaned up existing content and clarified the approval process while giving the Selectmen the final issuing authority. She modeled the ordinance after Yarmouth's, as requested, while allowing for the possibility of temporary permits at the Board's discretion.
- Ms. Costigan reviewed the changes that Ms. Carver made to make sure that there were consistent with the 1st Amendment. She also added language for the applicant to provide proof of their right, title and interest to use the property as well as placing a distance limitation from a permanent business, consistent with the language found in the S. Portland ordinance.].

Questions for the Selectboard were:

1. Do you want to include language that pertains to door-to-door salesmen, or leave it at stationary carts?
2. Do you want the process for temporary licenses to be the same as for an annual license? What is the fee for a temporary license?
3. Do you want temporary licenses to activities other than a yard sale?

In terms of allowing for festivals or other large events, that event would more than likely fall under a Mass Gathering Ordinance, which the Fire Department is also interested in creating to help manage particular events such as the annual Ice Derby, and I have included copies for your review.
